This book is one of the first of its kind to examine the aspirations of refugee background students and accompanies them as they journey through the on-shore stage of settlement, enrolment and participation in the Australian education system. This book is one of the first of its kind to examine the aspirations of refugee background students and accompanies them as they journey through the on-shore stage of settlement, enrolment and participation in the Australian education system. It begins with students' experiences of on-shore settlement, followed by the move into schooling and finally, the subsequent transition into Australian higher education. There is no doubt that most refugee background students find the transition into and participation in university education very challenging. In addition to the need to acquire high levels of English literacy, they have mostly been disadvantaged by intermittent schooling and by the traumatic experiences that forced them to leave their homelands.
