

Download Indian Politics Of The Twentieth Century

On the whole, however, India entered the 20th century with extensive experience of colonisation but with hardly any organised anti-imperialist movement of the modern type; the Congress, which had been founded in 1885, was a deliberative body of individuals who registered limited dissent against specific colonial policies but virtually no ...Mao Zedong. The founding father of the People's Republic of China from its establishment in 1949, he governed the country as Chairman of the Communist Party of China until his death. By bringing China under unified standards, Mao Zedong is considered as one of the most important personalities to have lived in the 20th century,...Important Events in India During the 20th Century. 1947 -- India gains independence from the British, integrates the Princely States and becomes a Democratic Republic. 1964 -- Disappointed by the failures of his Panchasheel policies, and having conceded defeat to the Chinese, Jawaharlal Nehru dies. 1966 -- Prime-minister...This 30 CATS undergraduate second-year option module will introduce students to some of the more dominant and durable strains of Indian political mobilization in the twentieth century. It will explore Gandhian anti-colonialism, the nationalism of the Hindu Right, the politics of caste and anti-caste movements, left-led workers' and peasants' struggles, and the developmental nationalism of the post-colonial state. - Indian Politics Of The Twentieth Century