

Download Wine Atlas Of Australia And New Zealand

History. Winemaking and vine growing go back to colonial times in New Zealand. British Resident and keen oenologist James Busby, who had also established wine regions in Australia such as the Hunter Valley, was producing wine on his land near Waitangi for local British soldiers in 1836. In 1851 New Zealand's oldest existing vineyard was established by French Roman Catholic missionaries for ...Hailing from Rennes, France, Remy holds a master's degree in food science from the University of Montpellier. His desire to make wine took him to Marlborough, New Zealand, France's Northern Rhone region, Victoria, Australia and California's Napa Valley. This list of wine-producing regions catalogues significant growing regions where vineyards are planted. Wine grapes mostly grow between the 30th and the 50th degree of latitude, in both the Northern and Southern hemispheres. Grapes will sometimes grow beyond this range and minor amounts of wine are made in some very unexpected places. The Juice. The Juice is our free newsletter that keeps you posted on wine & food events in your neighborhood. The Juice is currently sent to over 304,536 Wine & Food lovers just like you. Don't miss out! Sign Up for Free - Wine Atlas Of Australia And New Zealand